閱讀測驗：

Danny wanted to get the guitar in the shop window. On his way home he decided to save his money for the guitar. For the next several months he took as many jobs as he could. One day Danny took all the money he made to the bank. A man at the bank gave him a bankbook. Danny liked to take it out to look at it over and over again.

It seemed like a long time before he had twenty dollars. Danny worked and worked. April and May went by. The bankbook showed only thirty dollars.

"I need fifty more dollars," he said. But he did not give up hope. He went on working. Then school was over for the summer. "Now I can get more jobs" he said. And he did.

Soon he saved forty dollars. Then fifty dollars. Then sixty. Then seventy.

Finally, came the big day when he could buy the guitar. He looked at his bankbook. There it was --- eighty dollars! How happy Danny was when he got the money at the bank!

"I did it! I did it!" he shouted.
